

Output Application

A drainage network map helps delineate the different watersheds within a region, which play a significant role in both sewer and non-sewer zoning for any large town. Furthermore, watershed zones have significant applications in grey water management using an interceptor and diversion (I&D) framework. They can serve as functional linkages with the sewer system or may also operate as independent modules. Further this also has applications in identifying water logged prone area within the city.

Revision #1

Created 21 May 2024 07:12:19

Updated 28 January 2025 05:17:37