

Output Application

Areas in proximity to water tend to have a heightened risk of untreated wastewater encroaching into nearby water bodies, which can have significant public health and environmental ramifications. Identifying such settlements can guide the selection of safe containment provisions in both existing and upcoming units. These units can also be integrated with building by-laws and ensure safe containment provisions in all future constructions.

Revision #1

Created 21 May 2024 07:20:02

Updated 28 January 2025 05:17:37